

For Today's Risks,
Solutions That Go
Beyond The Uniform

Faced with increasing threats related to terrorism, workplace violence and business crime, as well as new regulations from the Department of Homeland Security, companies are recognizing that the traditional approach to security – employing low-skilled guards with minimal training and experience – is no longer adequate. With expertise gained from more than 40 years in the security business, Huffmaster's Premium Security Solutions can help you more effectively prepare for and mitigate these new threats.

Securing Your Business At A Higher Level

Unlike most security companies – who offer a one size fits all approach to security – Huffmaster's consultative approach is designed to assess the total security situation and then provide a solution that's tailored to the specific needs of each business.

A well thought-out security plan is only as effective the people who implement it, and our team is among the most experienced and professional in the business. Like companies from coast to coast – including many listed on the Fortune 500 – you can rely on Huffmaster to secure your business at a higher level.

Professional and Highly Trained Uniformed Officers

Premium Security solutions begin with thoroughly screened, highly trained and well-motivated uniformed officers who are committed to the success of our company – and yours. We reward this commitment with higher salaries, better benefits, more comprehensive training and greater opportunity for advancement. The result is a more experienced, skilled and reliable team of career security professionals that dramatically reduce turnover.

Customizable Security Solutions

Because no two companies face the same security threats, Huffmaster begins every engagement with a comprehensive needs analysis and vulnerability assessment. Based on the outcome of these assessments, we work with you to outline and implement a security plan that meets your specific goals and needs.

Site-Specific Training

Experience shows that the presence of well-trained uniformed officers is the best way to minimize the impact of most security threats. While most security firms provide their guards with standard training (on general security issues such as report writing and patrol procedures), Huffmaster supplements basic instruction with specialized training tailored to the needs of each posting. These specialized training sessions are designed to address issues such as company procedures, locations/facilities or unique threats related to the specific type of business to be secured.

Superior Technology and Communications

Unlike most security companies, Huffmaster's vision of technology goes well beyond two-way radios and surveillance cameras. Our powerful, remote-reporting tools, for example, allow managers to check on site security status from anywhere, at any time. And our innovative "short-burst" training modules are delivered to our staff via handheld wireless devices. From developing innovative new security technologies to finding better ways to employ existing ones, we are constantly exploring new ways to expand our capabilities and improve service levels.

Premium Security Solutions

When you engage Huffmaster, you'll benefit from the resources of a national, full-service security provider. In addition to professional security officers, you can rely on us for a complete range of premium security solutions including:

Training & Consulting Services | Through expert consulting and needs analysis, we develop a comprehensive plan designed to protect your business from the inside out.

Plant Closings | We provide operations management, uniformed officers, outplacement services, riggers and other services to ensure that events unfold smoothly, with minimum risk to people and property.

Workplace Violence | We guide you through a careful process of planning and prevention, including training programs designed to help employees recognize and/or respond to potential workplace violence situations.

Executive Protection | Our approach focuses on proactively identifying and mitigating threats before they happen, and includes training your key personnel to better participate in their own security.

RED Team | RED Team services (Readiness Evaluation Drills) provide an independent way to identify vulnerabilities in your company's security program, while also heightening the security awareness of your employees.

When to call Huffmaster:

- Frustration with standard “uniformed” guard service
- Operations/facilities with elevated threat levels
- Plant Closing/Downsizing
- Threat of Workplace Violence
- Employee Termination Support
- Strikes
